Re: Power Away from Coal, PNM

Dear Ms. Vincent-Collawn,

We, the undersigned and WildEarth Guardians, are writing to challenge PNM to put its money where its mouth is and to transition away from coal at the San Juan Generating Station.

As you know, the EPA has finalized its plan to clean up the San Juan Generating Station. PNM is challenging this plan, and has criticized the plan as too expensive. However, the only alternative offered by PNM is to continue operating the plant as is with nominal pollution controls. Worse, now PNM has proposed to force ratepayers to cover the full costs of air pollution controls without determining whether such costs are reasonable or prudent. This is not acceptable and appears to be a scheme to simply continue burning coal at the expense of our health, the environment, and ratepayers.

The San Juan Generating station releases more than 18,000 tons of smog forming nitrogen oxide gases, 51 pounds of mercury, and more than 13,000,000 tons of carbon dioxide – as much as is released by more than 2.3 million passenger vehicles. The plant's nitrogen oxide pollution contributes to the region's haze, smog and particulates. In 2011, the American Lung Association gave San Juan County's air quality an "F" because of smog pollution. It is estimated that every year, air pollution from the San Juan Generating Station causes 33 premature deaths, 50 heart attacks, 600 asthma attacks, and 31 asthma-related emergency room visits every year at a cost of more than $250 million.

We agree with PNM that we should not spend millions to clean up the coal-fired San Juan Generating Station. However, we disagree with your solution. Lead the charge and chart a new path forward for the San Juan Generating Station, one that fully moves away from coal.

Our health and our environment are too valuable to lose to air pollution. Either stop standing in the way of EPA's clean air plan and make investments in clean air, or start getting serious about powering past coal.

To do anything less should be considered criminal.

Signed,
