Volunteers assisted in Stream Team, an annual river restoration event held at different riparian locations, by helping to plant native trees and shrubs. Volunteers also assisted during fundraising events by checking attendees in, setting up and cleaning up after events, and general office help such as copying, mailing, etc. Members of the Board of Directors also serve in a volunteer capacity.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a - First Accomplishment

a larger climate change mitigation and adaptation strategy.

- Started a Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) program
- Re-vegetated and/or protected more than four miles of stream and rivers to include the Rio Grande, Rito Penas Negras, San Antonio Creek, and Rito de los Indios.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b - Second Accomplishment wetland habitats are all considered endangered ecosystems. advocating to end activities that threaten to destroy our public wildlands in the American West, we also work to ensure that they remain biologically intact and ecologically functional by actively restoring previously damaged lands, waters, and ecosystems. Our accomplishments mean not only greater protection for wild landscapes but also the wildlife, water and air that make them the treasures we cherish.

2013 specific accomplishments:

- Proposed that more than 400 miles of critical trout waters in Colorado receive the highest levels of protection from the state.
- Reached a resolution agreement with the Forest Service in Utah that will save imperiled wildlife and plants and keep clean air clean and safeguard

 1.7 million acres from damaging oil and gas drilling.
- Increased road decommissioning recommendations from 8 miles to 212 miles in the Helena National Forest in Montana. (212 miles is the number in the final rod.)
- Documented the return of numerous wildlife species to areas restored through road decommissioning; collected and analyzed data proving that wildlife species benefit from road decommissioning in the northern Rockies.
- Increased the capacity of land managers to restore watersheds by helping expand the use categorical Sclusions to cover certain types of road decommissioning.
- Conducted an independent review of the Forest Service Legacy Roads and Trails Program, documenting that this watershed restoration program is achieving its intended goals to restore water quality and watershed health while creating green jobs.
- In the Pacific Northwest, WildEarth Guardians ensured that restoration work in National Forests keeps a focus on healthy streams and rivers, rather than solely "vegetation management" (i.e., timber).

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c - Third Accomplishment footed ferret and lesser prairie chicken, the fauna and flora of the West form the very threads in the vibrant tapestry of life. We work to preserve that tapestry, rather than let it unravel.

2013 specific accomplishments:

- Generated over 30,000 public comments decrying the federal government's proposal to remove Endangered Species Act protections for the gray wolf.
- Continued multi-year legislative campaign to ban animal trapping in New Mexico.
- Received positive Endangered Species Act listing findings, critical habitat designations or recovery plans for the Jemez Mountain Salamander, New Mexico Meadow Jumping Mouse, Caribbean Electric Ray, jaguarundi, jaguar, Gunnison sage grouse, lesser-prairie chicken, yellow billed cuckoo, and wolverine, among other imperiled species.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4d - All Other Accomplishment

Climate and Energy Program:

Our vision is simple - a future 100 percent powered by renewable energy by 2035. To get there, the goal of our Climate and Energy program is reform that prioritizes energy efficiency and conservation, phases out fossil fuels, and embraces environmentally appropriate clean power sources. The tragedy of the Gulf oil spill was a disturbing reminder of just how much we stand to lose by relying on fossil fuels. That's why WildEarth Guardians' goal has been and continues to be simple: To help clean energy take root by exposing the true cost of fossil fuels.

2013 specific accomplishments:

- Safeguarded Chaco Canyon, the cultural heart of the southwest, and other special places in the West from the impacts of oil and gas drilling and fracking;
- Defended clean air from the impacts of coal-fired power plants in New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming;
